

Art and writing task.

Week 12

What makes you 'Bloom'?

Listen to and watch the book Bloom by Anne Booth. The book can be found using these links:

In the book, one of the themes that the author discusses is around positive thought and positive mind set. By treating the plant kindly and talking about it (and to it) positively the plant grows tall and begins to 'bloom'.

For this task you will be drawing a flower in the middle of your page and writing things that you have enjoyed from this year - these should include things you have experienced in school as well as a few examples of things from outside of school.

1) Before you begin.

Think about what kind of flower you want to draw. You could look up some flowers on the internet or perhaps look outside in your garden or local area for a flower to sketch. I like daffodils, sunflowers or daisy's as they make me feel happy but the flower you choose is up to you.

2) Draw.

Draw your chosen flower in the middle of a blank page and colour it in (or you can paint it).

3) Write.

Write all the positive experiences you have had this year around your flower. These can involve friends in school, family members, group activities or an individual achievement. You could include things you have learnt or things you have done.

4) Share.

Share what you have written with those around you. Maybe you want to discuss why these positive memories and experiences have made it on to your 'bloom' picture.

I have attached an example of this task to help you on your way below.

Happy creating!
